THE PEACEFUL MAN

From, The Imitation of Christ, by Thomas à Kempis

Keep thyself first in peace and then thou wilt be able to bring others to peace. A peaceful man does more good than one that is very learned.

A passionate man turns every good to evil and easily believes evil. A good, peaceful man turns all things to good.

He that is in perfect peace suspects no man, but he that is discontented and disturbed is tossed about with various suspicions; he is neither quiet himself nor does he suffer others to be quiet.

He often says that which he should not say and omits that which would be better for him to do. He considers what others are obliged to do, and neglects that to which he himself is obliged to do, and neglects that to which he himself is obliged.

Have, therefore, a zeal in the first place over thyself, and then thou mayst justly exercise thy zeal towards thy neighbor.

Thou knowest well enough how to excuse and color thy own doings, and thou wilt not take the excuses of others. It were more just that thou shouldst accuse thyself and excuse thy brother. If thou wilt be borne with bear also with another.

See how far thou art yet from true charity and humility, which knows not how to be angry with any one, or to have indignation against any one but one's self.

It is no great thing to be able to converse with them that are good and meek, for this is naturally pleasing to all. And everyone would willingly have peace and love those best that agree with them.

But to live peacefully with those that are harsh and perverse, or disorderly, or such as oppose us, is a great grace, and highly commendable and manly.

Some there are who keep themselves in peace and have peace also with others. And there are some that are neither at peace within themselves, nor suffer others to be in peace; they are troublesome to themselves.

And some there are who keep themselves in peace and study to restore peace to others. Yet all our peace in this miserable life is rather to be placed in humble sufferings than in not feeling adversities.

He who knows how to suffer will enjoy much peace. Such a one is a conqueror of himself and lord of the world, a friend of Christ, and an heir of heaven.

With two wings a man is lifted up above earthly things: that is, with simplicity and purity. Simplicity must be in the intentions, purity in the affection.

Simplicity aims at God, purity takes hold of Him and tastes Him. No good action will hinder thee if thou be free from inordinate affections. If thou intend and seek nothing ing but the will of God and the profit of thy neighbor thou shalt enjoy interior liberty.

If thy heart were right, then every creature would be to thee a mirror of life and a book of holy doctrine.

There is no creature so little and contemptible as not to manifest the goodness of God.

If thou wert good and pure within, then wouldst thou discern all things without impediment and understand them rightly.

A pure heart penetrates heaven and hell. According as everyone is interiorly so he judgeth exteriorly.
